We want to know more about your project. So, don't forget to add a pretty cover image, an optional video in the description, your code repository if you have one or other elements you might find useful. Remember, Intermediate judges will only evaluate your project by checking this page. Make sure you they will understand how good your project is and the progress you made building your prototype. The page already suggests some topics with a template but feel free up make it better.

When you think that everything's ready for the world to see it, click "Publish". Again, don't forget that intermediate judges will only see you published work. They start their evaluation on Friday 31st at 1:00pm. Make sure the latest version is published. You can still make updates until Friday 31st at 3:00pm.

Press the "Edit" button whenever you feel like updating your project page. It will be locked after 3:00pm on Friday 31st, the deadline for final submissions.

4. Backing - the voting process

The dynamics of voting in the BIT Hackathon are what you can find in the real world and in a real economy.

Every participant is an investor in TAIKAI and will be able to vote in the final presentations to help pick the winner.

When the voting starts, you can invest in the projects you like the most using your KAI. You can only start investing in the projects on at 17:30pm after the Final Presentations.

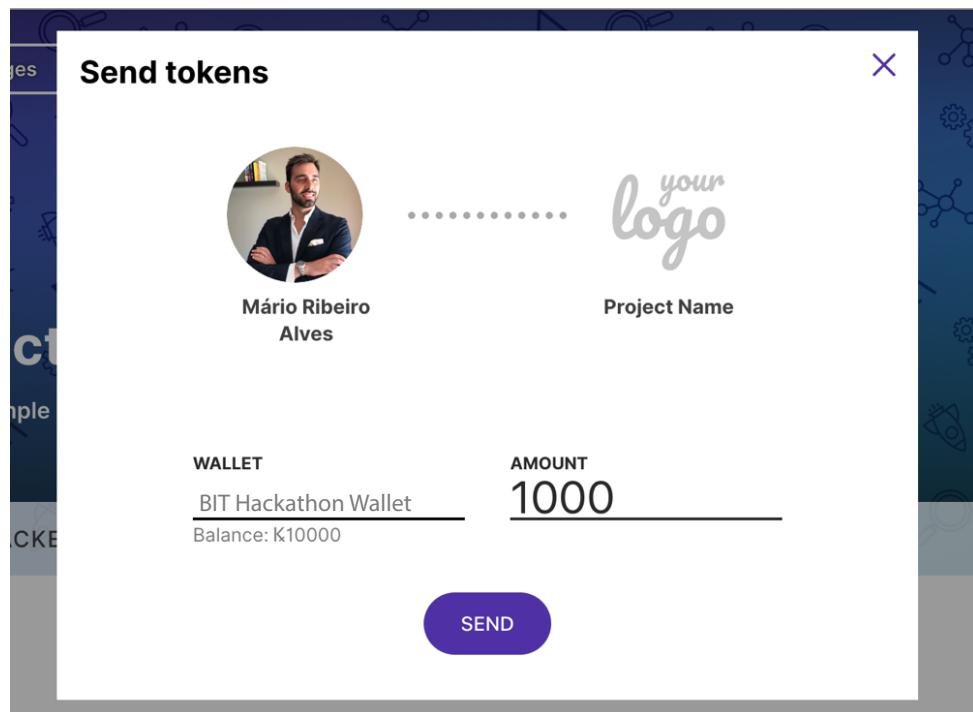

Intermediate Jury and Jury members are also Backers. Intermediate judges will select the final 15 teams that will go on stage pitch their projects. Final judges will vote on the finalist to pick the winner.

Judges will have more tokens than participants and will invest in the projects they think deserve it according to the criteria on our terms and conditions.

The winner will be the team with more tokens.

VOTE

To vote in a project, you simply transfer KAI coins (tokens) to the projects you like the most. To do that, go to the Project page you want to vote on and click on “BACK THIS PROJECT” button.

TAIKAI

Transfer as many KAI tokens as you think the project deserves. You put the eggs in several baskets or go all-in. It's up to you.

Every investment in a project, either coming from Final Judges, Intermediate Judges or participants will be entirely immutable, traceable and transparent, by design.

Let the games begin!
